Visiting Paris with children can be a memorable and rewarding experience, but it's not an easy one to organise: sometimes it helps to have someone else piece the puzzle together for you. Family Twist does just that, acting as your foolproof, family-oriented travel agency whether you're coming from London for a weekend or New York for two weeks.

Founder Magali Dechelette offers an A to Z service for parents or grandparents looking to craft the perfect visit to Paris, organising surefire activities for children of all ages, as well as guided tours that focus on making art and history accessible to the young ones. And if parents do need a special moment alone, Family Twist will also provide babysitting services while the happy couple heads out to dinner on their own. It's not just the kids who should have a little fun.

The agency can provide drivers to and from the airport, guides who are passionate about teaching children, and essentially any other English-speaking service that families may need during their stay. They can plan the entire trip including accommodations and transportation reservations, or simply provide activities tailor-made for Family Twist clients. Highlights of their offers include their many workshops and cultural activities. Treasure hunts at the Louvre, bread-making classes, and art lessons in a real studio in St-Germain are interactive and engaging ways to bring French culture to a child in a way that they will enjoy.
